MEATLESS DAY COMING SOON, HINT OF FDR

President Tells Press Plan Would Save 30-40 Ships For War Transport.

DISCUSSED WITH FRASER

Vessels Now Carrying Arms Will Bring Cargoes Back to U. S.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt declared today that a meatless day in the United States would save 30 to 40 ships for transport of other things such as ships, tanks and airplanes.

The president, at his press conference, added that his figures were still incomplete and he would not hazard a guess when a meatless day in this country might be ordered. But Mr. Roosevelt did say that it was a question of saving ships for more important purposes other than movement of meat.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that perhaps 200 or 300 ships are now being used to move meat from the Argentine, New Zealand and Australia. He said that we could take 30 or 40 ships out of the trade and divert them to movement of war munitions if a meatless day were ordered.

The question of a meatless day came up at the press conference when Mr. Roosevelt was asked about his talks with Prime Minister Peter Fraser, of New Zealand, who arrived in Washington earlier this week. He replied by saying that he and Fraser had literally talked about everything. Then, as almost an afterthought, Mr. Roosevelt said that there was one thing among the topics that he could discuss. He said that he could talk about the reports that there would be a meatless day in this country.

While he said that he had no final figures, the president did state that the whole problem was a question of saving ships.

Again Mr. Roosevelt estimated that a meatless day would save 30 or 40 ships and the fact that he kept using that figure indicated strongly to agriculture observers that a meatless day a week in this country might be closer than it was generally realized. Mr. Roosevelt stated that he did not think that a meatless day would throw the United States economy out of kilter.

Nor would it harm the economy of other countries shipping meat to the United States. In the case of Argentina, he declared, meat production would not have to be

TIES FOR LEAD

Mansfield Boy at Top of Heap In Trapshoot Classic.

Earl Goetz, 17-year-old son of Mansfield hardware merchant Harold W. Goetz, was tied for the lead at the half-way mark of the Grand American handicap trapshoot classic at Vandalia, near Dayton, today with 98 out of a possible 100 score.

Sharing the lead was Reuben Frederick of Bellevue, who is minus his left hand but uses a pump-gun.

Both were among those who were unable to complete 100 targets yesterday because of weather. Originally handicapped at 18 yards, they were moved back to 20 yards for the last 100 shots.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) —The navy announced today that British planes and fliers have joined the anti-submarine campaign in the western Atlantic.

The official statement said:

"Aircraft of the Royal Air Force coastal command are cooperating with the United States naval and army aircraft in anti-submarine operations in the western Atlantic and have already engaged the enemy."

The reference to "aircraft" was interpreted by navy spokesmen to mean both planes and personnel had been dispatched from the British Isles to the United States to aid intensification of the war on the U-boats.

Eye-Witnesses Tell How Heroic U. S. Marines Wiped Out 350 Japs, Wrecked Seaplane Base In Makin Raid

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

PEARL HARBOR, T. H.—(AP)—A force of 350 Japs—virtually every defender—was wiped out and all seaplane installations methodically wrecked by U. S. Marines during the recent Makin island raid, now disclosed by eye-witnesses to have been a two-day job of slaughter and destruction.

Contrasting with earlier reports of a hit-and-run raid, the participants, including Major James Roosevelt, son of the president, made it clear that the scrappy marines even hunted for the few Jap stragglers still alive before withdrawing to ships.

And so stealthy was the landing during a moonless night on the northernmost island of the Jap-held Gilbert group, 1,500 miles northeast of the Solomons, that the marines had been ashore for 20 minutes, deployed for battle, before the Japs discovered them.

"The morning of the second day, only eight Japanese were left on the island," related Lieut. Col. Evans F. Carlson of Plymouth, Conn., commander of the marines.

"We wiped out all we could find and, after a checkup with the natives, found only two Japanese unaccounted for. I cannot disclose our casualties but will say the Japanese losses on land alone were more than 10 to 1 of our losses, not counting the 150 Japs lost at sea or in planes."

Other dramatic episodes gleaned from the eye-witness accounts:

Jap snipers, strapped to cocoanut trees, fired at Major Roosevelt but missed. "I

Story of Heroic 'Torpedo Squadron 8', With Mansfielder In It, Told By Sole Survivor

Details of Last Flight In Midway Battle Are Revealed.

A complete and vivid account of the delaying task flight of heroic Torpedo Squadron 8 at the battle of Midway on June 4, in which Radioman William F. Sawhill, former Mansfield high school track star, lost his life, is told in this week's Life magazine by the only survivor of the 30 members of the squadron, Ensign George H. Gay, rescued the following day floating in a rubber boat.

Letters to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sawhill, 409 West Fourth street, parents of young Sawhill, and to The News-Journal, from Life magazine said Sawhill was "featured" in the article, but perusal of the story shows only two radiomen in the 15-plane squadron mentioned, and Sawhill was not one of the two.

Apparently the story had been "trimmed to fit" by Life editors after the letter was written.

However, the story gives a graphic account of the activities of all the pilots in the torpedo squadron on their task flight, purpose of which was to contact the Japanese fleet, radio its position to the American fleet, and delay the Japs until U. S. bombers and battleships appeared on the scene.

How well Squadron 8 carried out that task, at the cost of all 15 planes, and 29 of the 30 men in the crews, has been recounted time and again. But HOW they did it is told in detail by Ensign Gay

According to Sawhill's log book,

Members of Torpedo Squadron 8, who contacted and delayed the Japanese fleet at Midway on June 4 until American bombers and fleet arrived to rout the Japs in a complete naval victory, are shown in the above picture, received by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sawhill, 409 West Fourth street, parents of Radioman William F. Sawhill, who lost his life in the daring action by the squadron. Sawhill is shown by arrow. First two rows are composed mainly of radiomen, with pilots in the third row. Mrs. Sawhill today was able to identify the following members of the squadron: top row, left to right, 1—Ensign G. W. Teats, 2—W. W. Abercrombie, 3—U. M. "Whitey" Moore, with whom Sawhill flew in the Midway attack, 4—J. C. Woodson, 5—H. J. Ellison, 7—W. W. Creamer.

now in possession of his parents, Sawhill took off on that fateful morning of June 8 with Ensign U. M. "Whitey" Moore, who, while waiting for the take-off from the U. S. Carrier Hornet, called to Gay: "Tex, if you'll test the wind, I'll test the weight."

It was the first time pilots in the squadron had taken off with torpedoes under their ships. Gay was first in line for the take-off, and "Whitey" Moore and Sawhill were second.

Gay tells how they spotted a Jap cruiser plane an hour after the take-off, and knew that the Jap had radioed their location and direction to the Jap fleet. It was another hour before the fliers

DEVELOP 'POOL' TO DEFER DRAFT OF MARRIED MEN

Three County Boards Prepare Figures on Number of Single Men Available.

Richland county selective service boards were making out reports of their comparative strength in single draftees or others with few dependents today to help state headquarters set up what is believed will be a state draft pool to assure that available single men will be drafted before married men.

Selective service officials in Washington announced they had recommended that state boards establish temporary pooling arrangement. Local draft officials said they believed special report blanks being filled out at present were to be used for this purpose.

One of the local draft board officials said he believed that the "pooling" was also being done to even the percentage of single men being sent by the various boards.

Some boards, he said, now have only a few single men and have been obliged to call up married men to help fill quotas. Other boards which still have single men would, under the pooling arrangement be called upon to send a larger number of men than the "overdrawn" boards.

Federal officials said, according to Associated Press dispatches, that instructions had gone out early this month on the pooling arrangement, which was described as temporary, pending issuance of a new general directive from national headquarters governing the order of the call of draft registrants.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the war department, selective service system and congress are working out plans for greatly enlarging America's fighting forces by including the drafting of 18 and 19 year old youths.

Informed sources said that the war department is preparing to ask congress to permit lowering of the draft age and it is believed that some action may be taken within the next three months.

Spurs Raids as Russians Hold At Stalingrad

British Bombs Rock Rail-Aircraft Center At Kassel, Planes Range to Gdynia; Germans Blocked For 24 Hours Near Volga.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—Battle-grimed German forces which fought their way 400 miles from the Ukraine to the Volga valley reached the distant approaches to Stalingrad today, but Russian dispatches said they were blocked there by swarms of Red army infantry who closed in from all sides.

(By Associated Press)

An armada of British warplanes perhaps 600 strong pounded the German rail-aircraft center of Kassel in a "concentrated and effective" assault before dawn today, while on the Russian front the Red armies stemmed the Nazi drive against Stalingrad with a tempest of defense fire.

Other British planes flew 1,500 miles round-trip to bomb the Baltic port of Gdynia in Nazi-conquered Poland.

Soviet dispatches, while conceding that the Germans were battering at the distant approaches of Stalingrad and that the battle had reached a stage of crisis, said a Nazi armored spearhead to the northwest had been cut off and encircled.

In their 16-day-old counter-offensive on the central front, the Russians reported they had captured a heavily fortified point which may have been Rzhev, key German base 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and crushed attacks by Nazi reserves.

A Vichy radio broadcast asserted that Gen. Fedor von Bock's armies had reached the last belt of fortifications guarding Stalingrad, only 13 miles from the great Volga industrial city, but the report lacked confirmation from any other source.

Besides the attack on Kassel, 80 miles deeper into Germany than the Ruhr and Rhineland cities which have been the targets of British mass raids, the Nazi radio said planes attacked overnight in west, central and northeast Germany.

The German high command acknowledged "material damage in residential quarters" and civilian casualties in the Kassel attack.

Observers said the RAF may have chosen Kassel as a particularly vulnerable spot in Adolf Hitler's war machine, recalling that the fuehrer blamed part of the 1941-42 Russian winter disaster on frozen locomotives and promised that this winter there would be no such failure.

Kassel is a Nazi locomotive manufacturing center.

Gdynia is an important base for Nazi U-boat operations against Russia Baltic fleet, and the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau was known to have been there recently.

An RAF communique reported the loss of 30 bombers in the attack on Kassel, whose war foundries include the great Henschel locomotive works, biggest in Europe; the Henschel aircraft engine works, and the Fieseler aircraft works, which turns out Messerschmitt fighters.

Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke dispatched reformatory officials to the Pennsylvania city last night to regain custody of Fadden after Pennsylvania authorities refused to halt his extradition.

Friends in Toledo and Scranton have indicated they will appeal to Governor John W. Bricker to parole Fadden because of his good behavior during his years as a fugitive.

War With Japs Will Be Long, Warns Mansfield Missionary

"It will take time to beat the Japanese," declared Rev. Charles Matti, Mansfield missionary who, with Mrs. Matti, debarked from the diplomatic liner Gripsholm at Jersey City, N. J., late yesterday en route home after spending 17 years in Nanking, China.

Rev. and Mrs. Matti, representing the Society of Friends, have seen the hordes of Nippon in action since 1937, he told the International News Service in an interview obtained especially for The News-Journal. They were in the Chinese metropolis at the time of the Japanese invasion.

Some of the tortures inflicted on helpless Chinese were indescribable, the clergyman said as the couple came ashore from the refugee ship which carried 1,451 passengers from the Orient.

Their own treatment at the hands of the Japanese after the United States became involved in the war was not particularly bad, the missionary reported. They first were confined to their own compound but later taken to Shanghai where, eventually, they boarded

PUT ON BOARD

Lloyd Black, Shiloh, Named To Selective Service Vacancy.

Lloyd Black, Shiloh, today had been appointed by President Roosevelt to fill one of the two vacancies on selective service Board 3. The other post on the board has not been filled.

The vacancies were caused by the resignations of Ralph Lutz, Lexington, and H. L. Bigbee of Bellville. Lutz resigned to be a candidate for state representative and Bigbee because of the pressure of business. He is a banker.

Black, retired school superintendent, owns a large farm near Shiloh. He lives in the village.

Board 3 has only two of its five original members, E. R. Hershey of Pavonia, who is chairman, and Roy Culler of Lucas. C. C. Hartzell of Shelby is the other member.

RADIO RULING TO TAKE 90 DAYS

Examiner in Mansfield Station Hearing Expected to Give Findings in Month.

With the hearing apparently completeld in Washington on the application of radio station WMAN in Mansfield for renewal of its license, federal Communications commission officials indicated today that it would be at least 90 days before a decision on the application is handed down.

"It probably will require up to 60 days for the FCC to hand down its opinion after Examiner P. W. Seward, who presided at a lengthy hearing in Mansfield last month, submits his report, Associated Press dispatches from Washington said.

Examiner Seward made no estimate of the time he would need to prepare his report, but aides said it would be at least 30 days.

More Rain In Prospect After 2-Inch Downpour Soaks City

More showers were on tap today for the Mansfield area which yesterday afternoon and early this morning received two inches of rainfall in a series of thundershowers that gave the city its heaviest precipitation in a 24-hour period since last spring.

While no major damage was reported as a result of the downpour, County Engineer Howard Sword said he anticipated some calls to repair gravel and stone roads which were washed badly by the heavy rain.

The forecast was for scattered showers and thunderstorms today and tonight with the mercury due to continue its gradual rise. The reading was 72 at noon today. Yesterday's high was 80. The average was 74, six degrees above normal.

Farmers regarded the heavy rains as highly beneficial to pastures and late crops although corn generally is too far advanced to be affected much now by variations in rainfall.

Heaviest downpour was at 4 a. m. today when the rain was accompanied by an electrical storm. The rain continued almost without interruption until after 8 a. m.

Sewers overflowed and streets were flooded during the storm early this morning, but it came at a time when there was little traffic moving and no accidents were reported.

Badly crippled in a collision with another vessel far out in the foggy Atlantic, a small British merchantman was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine as it wallowed helplessly a day after the accident.

The destruction of the British vessel which went down three minutes after the torpedo struck early this month—together with that of two other merchantmen disclosed yesterday, brought to 445 the Associated Press tabulation of announced wartime Allied and neutral merchant losses in the western Atlantic.

FLEES: Jap Fleet Turns Tail After Battle In Solomons Area

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A badly-mauled Japanese fleet, foiled in an all-out attempt to recapture the Solomon islands, fled today before the onslaughts of American airmen.

Naval observers said undoubtedly American airmen were seeking to track down the fleeing Japanese to harass them and prevent their reforming for a possible new attack. They recalled that similar tactics were followed after the Japanese rout at Midway.

It was the fourth successive time that the Japanese navy has been forced to turn tail and run for it after coming up against American air and naval power. That happened in the battles of the Coral sea and Midway and in an earlier engagement of the present Solomons campaign.

Although there was always a possibility the enemy fleet might reform and, with reinforcements, make another attempt to recapture the Solomons, it appeared for the time being that American forces had scored another decisive victory. The navy carefully avoided claiming a victory, merely reporting that the enemy had broken off the engagement and apparently was in retreat from the Guiagi area.

Previously, the navy reported that another force composed of transports — presumably bearing occupation troops—and escorting warships was forced to flee after making an attempt to approach Guadalcanal, one of the major islands in American hands.

With the final score not yet in, the Japanese fleet casualties include at least 13 ships damaged, some severely, and at least 33 planes lost. American losses have not yet been disclosed except that only four planes were downed.

Disclosure that the enemy had withdrawn came only five days after the big Japanese counter-attack was started. The navy's communique said:

"Since the issuance of navy department communique No. 112

POISON: Nazi Yugoslav Consul On Assassination List 'Dies'

(By United Press)

LONDON—Yugoslav quarters hinted today that Dr. Hans Drosch, German consul general for the Ljubljana district in Croatia who "died suddenly," according to private advices received here, had been poisoned by agents of Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch.

Drosch, who died at the Hotel Slon in Ljubljana, was on the guerrilla commander's "Z" list of Axis occupation authorities and Quislings in Yugoslavia marked for assassination. Sixteen such persons have been assassinated by Mikhailovitch's "execution corps" during the past few weeks, it was said.

Alarmed by assassinations, the Germans issued a new warning to the Yugoslavs that they will shoot 10 hostages for every German killed unless the guilty persons are found. The Germans admitted that there recently have been many attempts on the lives of officials, persons cooperating with them, and German officers.

Patriots assassinated the mayors of Zaplana, near Vrhnik, and Smuhel, near Novemesto, Yugoslav government quarters said. They also reported that five persons were sentenced to death in Absentia at Ljubljana, upon Italian orders, for political crimes.

RAF RAIDS HIT KEY NAZI CITY, POLISH SEAPORT

Reports from Folkestone, on the English south coast, said RAF planes were streaking across the channel in brilliant moonlight all through the night.

By daylight, RAF fighters carried on the round-the-clock offensive, and observers on the English coast heard a steady drumbeat of explosions rolling back from the Nazi-occupied French "invasion" coast.

Other reports suggested possible naval battles were raging in the English channel, shrouded today by heat mist, and in the narrow waters of the Kattegat between Sweden and Denmark.

Heavy gunfire was heard out in the channel, and Swedish reports said cannonading heard at Varberg on the west coast of Sweden appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the Kattegat, the route German ships would have to take to reach their home bases from the North sea.

German night raiders were credited by DNB with attacking the English cities of Folkestone, Leeds and Hull.

On the Russian front, Soviet troops fell back deeper into the towering mountains of the central Caucasus, but there were indications that the situation was no worse before Stalingrad and was better before Moscow.

At mid-day, a bulletin from Red army headquarters announced that Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov's central armies "fought the enemy in the outskirts of Rzhev," the highly important Nazi base on the north flank of the old Napoleonic corridor from Moscow to Smolensk.

Then, without identifying the point by name, the Soviet communique declared:

"In one sector of the western (Moscow) front, our troops occupied an enemy fortified place. The Germans, hurling in reserves, launched several counter-attacks which were repulsed by our troops."

Field dispatches said the Russians had smashed through three successive lines of fortifications on which the Germans had labored six months to build around Rzhev.

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said the Nazis threw every available reserve into the battle for Rzhev, which yesterday was marked by bloody street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the northern suburbs of the city.

"Northwest of Stalingrad, our troops are inflicting blows against the enemy by counter-attacks and are annihilating his manpower," the Russian high command said.

The mid-day Soviet communique said two Nazi detachments succeeded in piercing Russian defenses in the 40-mile-wide corridor between the Don and Volga, but both breaks were repaired by counter-attacks.

The communique said Red army shock troops surrounded and wiped out one of the detachments an automatic rifle force, and crushed the other group of tank-led infantry.

With less than 48 hours remaining in which to fulfill a Berlin military spokesman's boast that "the fate of Stalingrad will be decided this week," German field headquarters gave only this terse account of the battle:

"Southwest of Stalingrad the German offensive is gaining ground against stubborn enemy resistance."

Soviet dispatches said the Germans had turned the fury of their aerial assaults on residential sections in the heart of Stalingrad, dropping hundreds of fire bombs to set many homes aflame.

The Nazi command said German troops had forced their way across several more mountain passes in the Caucasus and "annihilated" Soviet defenders barring their path.

The communique asserted also that the Red armies' offensive on the Moscow front near Rzhev was "smashed up in several places in cooperation with the Luftwaffe."

In London, British military quarters said the situation was "considerably improved" but that the prospect of a "big strategic victory" for the Russians was not yet in sight.

The Russians said the battle for Stalingrad was mounting in violence at the close of the second month of Gen Von Bock's all-out offensive, and the government declared:

"The Hitlerites bring into action huge fresh tank and infantry forces."

Photographs taken after the raid, however, showed Major Roosevelt with a bandage around the end of his right middle finger. There was no explanation of how he received the injury. He was wearing a broad grin at the time and otherwise showed no ill effects.

Other pictures showed a lot of satisfied smiles on the faces of the marines after they returned from the scrap. Col. Carlson looked unusually happy.

By the second day, "There were dead Japs behind most every cocoanut tree," said Colonel Carlson.

"On the battlefield, I picked up a sword and pistol of the Japanese lieut.-colonel commandant and turned it over to Commander (John M.) Hames (of Coronado, Calif.) who presented it to Admiral Nimitz (Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet).

Lieut. Oscar F. Peatross of Raleigh N. C., led a group which got caught behind the Japanese lines. In a close exchange, they fought it out with a Jap patrol, and lost three men but cut in from the rear, shot down Jap runners, burned trucks and destroyed a radio station.

Colonel Carlson lauded it as "one of the coolest bits of heroism." It was Lieutenant Peatross' baptism under fire.

A Jap bomber was caught by marines while attempting to flee the battle scene. They shot away two of its engines and from 100 feet up it crashed, killing all aboard.

Major Roosevelt summed up what he thought of the raiding force this way: "I don't think there is a finer group of men in the world."

LONDON —(AP)— Reuters dispatches from Stockholm said today that three quarters of the Norwegian fishing fleet in northern Norway—about 2,000 small craft—had been requisitioned by the Germans.

Oslo dispatches to Stockholm were quoted as saying that in some cases the crews also were requisitioned.

cut, although some meat may have to be stored there.

In the case of New Zealand and Australia, Mr. Roosevelt declared, he is working with Mr Fraser to see that ships moving munitions and soldiers to the southwest Pacific come back with full cargoes of products that those countries can furnish the United States.

Meanwhile the WPB foods requirements committee today takes final action on immediate allocation and rationing measures to assure equitable distribution of war-short meat supplies.

Agriculture sources revealed that the committee headed by Secretary Wickard will have before it—as alternate solutions for the meat problem—meatless days, rationing to retailers, and allocation of meats to shortage areas.

These sources added that the solution arrived at may be a combination of any or all of the suggested programs.

Wickard's experts said that the distribution measures are being taken "to remedy a peculiar type of shortage—the result of a record year in meat production."

The shortage which exists despite top production, they explained, is due to the tremendous demands of the armed forces and lend-lease on the available supplies, combined with increased civilian consumption due to high war wages.

Religious work of various denominations will go on in Nanking, Rev. Matti said, "but only with great difficulty while the Japanese are there." He said that six religious workers of various faiths were left behind.

Eventually, he said "the Japanese will wear themselves out, but it will not be as soon as we hope."

The Chinese have the greatest confidence in the United States but are hopeful of more aid than they have been getting, he reported. He added that the Japanese attack against the United States "amazed" the Chinese.

BADLY-MAULED JAP FLEET ON RUN IN PACIFIC

Flees From Scene of Solomons Battle With American Forces in Pursuit.

(issued Wednesday afternoon), there has been no further action in the sea battle off the Solomon islands.

"Japanese surface forces appear to have withdrawn from the vicinity of our positions in the Tulagi area."

Thus, on the basis of preliminary indications, it appeared that the Americans had won round two in the battle for the Solomons, as they did the initial round when the marines captured several islands in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area.

Experts, seeking to deduce the cause of the Japanese withdrawal, believed the retreat was necessitated by a depletion of the attacking force's air strength. They pointed out that besides shooting down 33 enemy planes, American airmen also bombed two aircraft carriers, scoring four hits on the largest of them.

Without air protection, the Japanese fleet's position would be untenable in the face of American aviation supremacy in the battle area.

Action Blazes Over Milne Bay Area

GEN MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—(U P)—Action blazed in the air and on the ground today over the southeastern end of New Guinea where the Japanese had landed a new invasion force on the muddy shores of Milne Bay.

Gen Douglas MacArthur's planes shot down 12 enemy fighter planes. Dive bombers damaged two more so severely they probably crashed, and damaged at least four more in three savage fights.

Anti-aircraft guns shot down three more enemy craft to bring the five day score of planes downed to Japanese 57, Allies 5.

Gen. MacArthur reported in his communique, No. 137 from his southwest Pacific headquarters, that action was steadily developing between the Allied ground forces and the Japanese holding Milne Bay, 225 miles from the Allied base of Port Moresby.

The Allied forces were moving through mud three feet deep on narrow jungle trails to engage the enemy but though it was known their attack was now developing, details were scarce because of the difficulty of communications.

It was indicated that as soon as they landed the Japanese had scattered into the thick jungle so they could not be detected from the air.

Two of the air battles MacArthur reported took place over the Milne Bay area.

See Jap Defeat At Milne Bay

LONDON —(UNS)— There are "good prospects" that the Japanese will be defeated in the Milne Bay sector of New Guinea where they effected a landing this week, Reuters (British) news agency reported today from Sydney.

The dispatch said that severe fighting was underway and that the Japanese were confronted with a considerable force of well-seasoned Allied troops who, it was said, were being supported by planes which were literally "making circles around the enemy."

ington, the examiner held present owners of the station responsible for alleged misrepresentations of original stockholders when the station applied for its permit to go on the air.

Examiner Seward said any decision of the FCC would probably be influenced by evidence of the accuracy of financial reports.

During the hearing in Mansfield late in July, John F. Weimer, former secretary-treasurer of Richland, Inc., operators of the station, testified that a financial statement filed with the FCC in August, 1938, showed that the corporation had $20,000 on deposit in a Mansfield bank when the bank records showed there was only $41.02 in the bank when the license was granted.

Other former stockholders and station affiliates testified that the $20,000 was in the bank at the time the statement was filed and there was no attempt at falsification.

Monroe F Rubin, now president of Richland, Inc, loaned money to the station founders as early as the summer of 1938 and since then frequently advanced funds to finance its operations although he said he did not become interested as a stockholder until the spring of 1940, testimony showed.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 28, 1942.

Elmer Davis says: "People are entitled to the news as a matter of principle"—and also of interest.

Unheard remark: "Are you sure you haven't made a mistake? I thought that piece of meat would cost me much more."

They tell of a youthful Pittsburgher who blew his horn 15 minutes to let a friend know he had arrived—but it may be hoped that this isn't a part of the Wake-Up-America movement.

School Army To Report Soon

ANOTHER army—not military—is getting ready to go into action . . . the boys and girls who represent America on the school front. Physical fitness is also required in this army and it is time for medical examinations, if they have not already been made. This should be looked after while the family doctor has time. If they need slight changes of diet, dental attention or a correction of vision, he will tell their parents and the work can be done before the big rush of school work begins.

The shortage of doctors and dentists is already showing. Next winter, at the time when medical work is always heaviest, it will be still harder to get such things done. School soldiers should be as ready for anything as army men are. They know they will be called on for hard work at school—they do not yet know what may be required of them at home and as citizens of their neighborhoods. Let them be as well prepared as parental intelligence and effort can make them.

Parents need not be afraid the children will not co-operate. In peace time it seems to be every American's privilege to complain about the dentist, postpone examination of eyes, resist changes in diet, etc. But in time of war every good soldier does his duty without a murmur. The young soldiers will do theirs, never fear, if they once understand that they are valuable members of Uncle Sam's citizen armies. Every bit of courage and energy turned to good purpose will help to win the war.

Soldiers' uniforms must be trim and in good order. So with the young soldiers' clothes. They should be new if possible, but at least clean, mended, and pressed for school. Then the wearer must be careful of them, as a soldier is.

Get busy, you younger soldier! Study hard. Work hard. Be considerate of tired parents and teachers. It's your war, too, and your country.

More Confidence In Sugar Users

NOW that sugar users have had time to become accustomed to getting along on a half pound of sugar per week per person, they are to be trusted to buy an entire ten weeks' supply at one time, instead of a pound every two weeks, or two pounds per month, as had heretofore been in effect.

The No. 8 coupon, now valid, permits purchase of five pounds for each member of the family—but this must be made to reach through until the first of November—so there'll be need for watchfulness, else the bowl may be empty before replenishment is permitted.

But, then again, rationing coupons permit purchase of more sugar than some families require, and, as nearly as can be ascertained, there is no reason why there can't be a neighborly interchange of sugar in order to equalize surpluses and deficits.

Asks No Let-Up In War Production

PRODUCTION for war, rather than enjoyment of a holiday, is being urged for this year's observance of Labor day in cities where the chief industrial effort is being devoted to making war materials.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, has appealed to heads of union labor organizations to adjust Labor day observance to the need of maintaining full production by all mines, industries and plants in which a shut-down would be injurious to the war effort.

There is no inclination, he makes clear, to interfere with proper celebration of Labor day as a holiday, but he believes that in many instances rearrangement of schedules would make this possible without hampering production.

For plants and mines which find it necessary to operate throughout the entire day he suggests brief celebrations within the plants.

With millions of workers engaged in tasks directly associated with war needs, the effect of a complete one-day shutdown throughout the country would be tremendous and there can be no finer observance of Labor day than by speeding production of planes, ships, tanks, guns, and supplies of every kind needed by our fighting forces.

Pedaling There and Back

MOST of the automobile traffic still operating is that of people who work in town and live on the outskirts, driving to and from work. It is evident that a great deal of such transportation, using up gasoline and tires, is unnecessary. Swarms of people in most communities could use bicycles without hardship.

In one community with a large industrial population around the edges, a "Ride-a-Bike-to-Work" movement has been started with considerable evidence of success. Pioneers in this effort say they enjoy it. The pedaling seems to be mostly enjoyable and invigorating at the beginning and end of the day, rather than a hardship.

Eventually this may be normal procedure generally—if the bike supply doesn't run out.

Maybe You Don't Even Care

HERE'S some information that Research Viewpoint credits to a student "with the patience of Job," but which might also have been gleaned from observations of a reporter on an unhurried assignment.

In every twenty-four hours, he says, a cow grazes about eight hours, spends twelve hours lying down and loafs the remaining four hours.

The cow's average grazing speed is from fifty to seventy bites a minute, with a top speed of ninety bites.

Which, however, doesn't explain that childhood mystery of how a red cow that eats green grass can give white milk.

The marriage may be secret but the divorce is usually in the open.

Still Demanding United Air Arm

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The desirability of a cabinet department of military aviation has long been urged by air-minded persons.

Unified control of all branches of our armed forces also has been suggested. It exists, to be sure, due to the president's position as commander-in-chief, but the unificationists want a boss in direct charge of national operations, which have to be adapted to changing conditions too rapidly for the president, with his many other duties, to keep up with, minute by minute.

The main argument against consolidation has been that the army and navy air arms cannot be merged very handily. Their functions differ essentially. Each needs a group of its own particular kind of specialists to run it efficiently.

Both these sets of specialists were prompt to recognize aviation's value to their respective services. Flying was more or less in its infancy during the last war. Still, it was utilized by surface leaderships, ashore and afloat, up to the limit of what they could get out of it in its then state of development.

Upon the present conflict's outbreak they grabbed at it alike, in its improved form, for all it was worth. They likewise made further improvements and are still making them. To what an extent they will have transformed earthly and heavenly transportation, by the time this strife is over, there's no telling.

Double Air Arm.

The war department proceeds on the assumption that planes are included among army weapons. The navy department takes it for granted that they are among the fleet's weapons. They are not jealous of one another. The navy is welcome to as many bombers as it can get, for all the army cares. And vice versa.

The point is, though, that the army classifies its flyers as "army aviators" and the navy speaks of its contingent as "navy aviators."

But a few months ago it began to be talked that our aviation is as important—if not more so—as either our army or navy, that it is more than a mere couple of land and sea adjuncts, that it is entitled to a cabinet rating of its own.

Army and navy professionals, with their aviation subordinates naturally excepted, generally dissent from this reasoning. They are strong for aviation, but they maintain that it is essentially either an army or a navy subdivision and ought to be kept so, to get from it its best possible results.

These army and navy earthlings, then, agree—

That aircraft is enormously useful, but not as an independent set-up, only subject to army and navy authority.

My! If those terrestrial-minded old army and navy men had foreseen the upspringing of a school of thought which regards aviation as an independent unit—not only as entitled to cabinet departmental status, but a department of everything military!

Meeting America

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE WERE talking to the homesick young recruit we'd picked up near the Sunnyvale base. He wasn't much more than a kid and had received nearly all his training down South. And the Far West was still a picture puzzle to him. He couldn't get on to our way of eating, kidding and laughing, much less thinking.

There was another long, lean outfit with him—a marine, 15 years older perhaps—who'd kicked around the world for most of his years. He was grinning at the youngster, trying to wise him up—and making progress.

The kid, for instance, couldn't understand Western mannerisms. Our lack of what were to him the fundamental courtesies. Our happy-go-lucky philosophy. The way we raced around, lickety-larrup, and kick formalities in the teeth. He wanted to be gentle and chivalrous to these breezy Western gals but was fast discovering that he might as well cuddle up to an untamed bronco.

Our food—that was another thing that got him. The huge bowls of mixed vegetable salad which every true Californian tosses off as a preliminary to any kind of a meal. The piles of fruit they consume so nonchalantly. The beakers of milk that even a spurred cowboy drinks.

"Back home" he'd practically subsisted on grits and mustard tops, "pot likker," beaten biscuit and fried chicken. Here there was a new tang and taste to the dishes which Spaniards, Mexicans and Italians had evolved, and a hundred dishes to every one he'd known in the South. It shuah had him dizzy.

But the big marine only grinned. "You'll get used to it, kid; it's good for what ails you."

And the tall chap said a mouthful. I'm no one to see the silver lining to any war but I do believe that the mixing-up and shoving-around which our boys and girls are getting, is one of the finest things that has ever happened to America—and one of the most necessary.

We have been living too long in isolated compartments with special traditions and taboos. Millions of us have never Met America. We're doing it now, and it's going to weld us into a real United States of America instead of 48 squabbling, sectional districts.

IT MAY EVEN ACHIEVE THAT CONDITION WE SO OFTEN PREACH AND SO SELDOM PRACTICE—DEMOCRACY.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, August 28, 1922.

Charles L. Shafer, senior at Western Reserve medical school, was chosen as resident assistant pathologist at Lakeside hospital.

Forest R. Beer, Wood street, sustained fractured wrist while cranking automobile.

Birthday surprise party was given for C. W. Scott at his home on Spring street.

Miss Dorothy Hardwidge and William H. Braddick were married by Rev. J. H. Culler.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John McDevitt, 25 West Arch street; daughter to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lotz, 25 Wheatrow avenue.

Miss Ethel Ackerman of Northfield, Minn., came to Mansfield as instructor of nurses at General hospital.

A. Sturgess, West Fourth street, went to Columbus for tenth annual visit to state fair.

TODAY IN HISTORY

First steam locomotive built in America, Peter Cooper's "Tom Thumb," made its appearance on Aug. 28, 1830. No larger than the size of a modern handcar, the engine pulled its first train of cars over the 13-mile track of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Health And Diet

Health Questions Answered Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

F. W.: I have had my gallbladder X-rayed and was told I had gallstones. Would excessive gas in the stomach be caused from this condition? Is surgery the only cure, and do the stones gather again?

Answer: Gas on the stomach is one of the prominent symptoms of gallstone disease. Surgery is the only real cure. Stones re-form in only about one out of a 1,000 cases. Medical treatment with a mild diet and a small dose of salts in the morning on arising, however, allows many patients long years or a lifetime of comfort.

W. E. S.: Will you please tell me if cracking of the joints is a form of rheumatism?

Answer: It is a form of amusement. Leon Feuchtenwanger lists as one of the seven pleasures of old age, cracking your fingers.

M. G.: I am going on a liquid diet and am wondering if fresh fruits and vegetables would give me any calories. I am 16 years old and 20 pounds overweight.

Answer: Yes, certainly. If you are going on a liquid diet to reduce and don't know any more about food values than appears in your question, you had better get a table of food values or you may gain.

F.: Are thyroid tablets harmful in any way if taken with a doctor's advice? A lady told me she took them and they made her nervous. I should take them as I am a way overweight.

Answer: Answering your question strictly, if taken with a doctor's advice thyroid tablets are harmless, but the doctors directions should be followed. You sound to me as if you were thinking of taking them without consulting a doctor. Thyroid extract is a very poor way to reduce. The only safe procedure is a strict diet.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Shut-In.

She sits and rocks the hours away.
Her chair keeps pace with time.
And there is in her rocking this,
A merry, jolly rhyme.

She knits, crochets and sews, and she
Gives counsel good and true
To many seeking it, helps them
Their faith and hope renew.

She is a shut-in, but you would
Not think of pity, say
A word of it, so happily
She lives from day today.

Russian Offensive Arouses Hope That War's Tide May Be Turning

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

DISCLOSURE of the heavy—and thus far very successful—new Russian offensive in the important sector northwest of Moscow, and a forecast by the Soviet army newspaper Red Star that the Bolshevists will halt the Nazis on the Caucasian mountain line, are an invitation to examine the possibility that the Hitlerite tide may have about reached high water and be ready to ebb.

One approaches this idea with the utmost caution, because of the obvious dangers of the Russian position in face of the terrific striking-power being exhibited by the Germans.

Of one thing we are certain—the battle of the Caucasus is still anybody's fight. On that basis, let's examine the situation.

The Red offensive in the Rzhev sector northwest of Moscow has been under way fifteen days already. The Reds claim an advance of 25 to 30 miles. This drive apparently has been undertaken to compel the Nazis to withdraw strength from the Stalingrad front and thus ease the fierce pressure on that strategic city, as well as strengthen the defenses of Moscow.

If Hitler should capture Stalingrad and crush Bolshevist resistance farther south, he might make another supreme effort to capture Moscow before winter. His idea would be to make his position impregnable as far down as the Caucasus range, so that even if he doesn't succeed in forcing the mountains he would be able to hold his lines easily during the winter while devoting his energy to other pursuits—quite likely development of the Egyptian campaign.

In the Caucasus, Red Star says the battles there have entered a new phase now that the sweeping plains over which Hitler's tanks have been racing are giving way to mountainous terrain where these steel monsters and planes are less effective.

The Germans have been depending heavily on their tanks and warplanes, and a vast weakening of these two fighting arms may indeed alter the picture. However, the Nazis have demonstrated that they are no mean mountain fighters, and only time will determine the issue.

A great deal depends on the outcome of the siege of Stalingrad.. Should Stalingrad fall quickly, it would release many Nazi troops for the fighting farther south. Naturally that might alter the whole show.

While all this is going on in the Russian theater, we mustn't relax our watch on Egypt. A great and crucial battle is likely to erupt there at any moment between the Allies and Nazi Marshal Rommel's forces, which represent one claw of the pincers that Hitler is trying to clamp on the whole Middle East.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—For the first time in history so far as anyone recalls, every member of Congress— House and Senate—is participating in the biggest Navy recruiting campaign ever staged.

When it's all over, some 6,000 speeches will have been broadcast to every nook and corner of every state, with the prospective recruits hearing 13½-minute appeals from their own representatives and senators.

Approximately 100 of the speeches have already been turned out by the Navy radio information section. This in itself is staggering task, for not only are the usual recruiting appeals—training in a choice of 63 professions and trades, service to the nation, health benefits, etc.—included, but also a community appeal directed primarily at the section or state to which the speech is aired. For example, in industrial sections, it will be pointed out how youths, while serving their country, can equip themselves for the post-war jobs right at home.

THESE speeches are turned over to the congressmen and as fast as they can be shunted through the radio recording studio in the House office building, Robert Coar, in charge, prepares the recordings. These are distributed to the radio stations back home.

Kickoff speeches were made on national hookups by House Majority Leader John W. McCormack and Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. It will be rolling along for weeks, maybe months yet.

In its midwar recruiting drive, the Navy is following its lifetime policy of depending on enlistments rather than on draftees. The president months ago, by executive order, opened the selective service roles to the Navy. So far they have not found it necessary to make a single request.

Indirectly, of couse, selective service is responsible for thousands of the Navy enlistments. Youths who are classified 1-A, but prefer the Navy rush to join before they are grabbed for the Army.

Recruiting, rather than the simpler method of drafting, also is part of the Navy's cagey policy of skimming the cream off the manpower crop. Nearly every man in the Navy is there because he wants to be there or prefers being there to being in any of the other armed forces.

It is part of this policy which has led the Navy since Pearl Harbor particularly to grab accomplished young technicians and specialists, enroll them in the naval reserve and keep them in that backlog until the training program had expanded sufficiently to call them up.

It is part of this policy which caused the Navy in some sections of the United States, perhaps most, to send personal letters to the recent 18 to 20-year-old registrants inviting them to enlist. If congress later this year does decide to put the 18-to-20's on the selective service roles, the Army will find a lot of the lads have already gone to the wars at sea.

Man About Manhattan

High-Priced Stitches

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Service men complaining bitterly against tailoring fees....Can't get a chevron stitched on for less than a buck. ....They claim almost any service is based on the tip....Service men shouldn't have to tip anybody....Somebody ought to look into that....One chief petty officer told me New York treated enlisted men better than any town in the country....He said, in his experience, treatment at Norfolk was the worst.

PANSY the hack horse at the Diamond Horseshow is a swell idea....She is played by two actors whose names are Andy Mayo and Nonnie Morton....Andy says he is head of the act, although Nonnie is the head of the horse.

If this horse business seems confusing, listen....The name of Billy Rose's new show is "Mrs. Astor's Pet Horse."....It's the nostalgic (with whipped cream) reminiscences of Pansy the old hack horse who stands in front of the Plaza hotel. She likes to discuss faded moments of old glory with the cab driver. Pansy tells him that, actually, she used to be a race horse but was left at the post one day when a handsome horse came by and she couldn't take her eyes off the nag....Her furious owner sold her to the circus, and when Mrs. Astor saw Pansy and ohed and awed over her John Ringling presented her to Mrs. Astor as a gift. She then took Mrs. Astor everywhere she went and became her pet horse. Hence the name.

Pansy dominates the show as the master of ceremonies....She takes the audience on rococo excursions back to the shadows of a Manhattan that existed a long time ago and exists still only in old front room albums and on the walls of chop houses.

YOU see an uneven crowd, a strange yet typically American crowd. The man next to me was Arthur Garfield Hays, the noted lawyer, whose life story, "City Lawyer," has just been published. You see service men of all branches. Rival producers come to observe. Earl Carroll, from the coast, turned up, murmuring, "Wish I had produced this." The average check for the Horseshow is $3.20. I suppose a thousand people a night are entertained. But there is a terrific overhead. Enough must be left over to make it interesting, however. Rose is not a man to beat himself over the head just because it feels good when he stops.

Timely Editorial

Last Year's "Birdsnests."

We hear with pleasure that the state highway authorities are moving in the matter of advertising signs on highway rights of way. The merits of the rule on this point no longer need discussion. They are conceded. In this campaign time, meanwhile, there is a special reason, a consideration of humanity, for invoking the rule.

We refer to the candidatorial sign on telephone pole, electric light pole, fence and tree beside the road. If the defacing of the highways with this kind of advertising could be justified, these would supply the case.

Our system of politics calls on something short of a million candidates for high and low office to catch the public eye. It is an efficient system. Most of these minor offices should be filled by appointment, not by election. That would end America's great guessing contest at election time, put something less hazardous in its place.

The election is held. Half the million candidates are beaten. Yet still, on pole and wall and tree hangs on, far into the winter, the melancholy reminder of those who spent their money and only "also ran."—Springfield News.

Daily Bible Thought

A Farmer's Diary

Junk and Such

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

REUNIONS with old friends, after many years, are a poignant kind of joy . . . not unmixed with sadness.

I was present at the meeting of two farmers' wives who had not met since they graduated from the same high school in 1911. Said the first, "I feel like kissing you—on both cheeks." Said the other, "Do. Go ahead! Only don't tell me I look the same as when I was 16—that'd be too much. It'd make me mad."

I watched them seat themselves and begin to talk. The one who was thin, as a girl, is heavy now; the one who was fat is lean. Both have grown children.

Richard Henry Stoddard's poem came to my mind—

"There are gains for all our losses,
There are balms for all our pain;
But when youth, the dream, departs,
It takes something from our hearts,
And it never comes again."

THIS junk collecting business is a fine thing. But next time our family gets a pile collected, I hope the truck will be on hand to haul it off. Junk is such fascinating play material for youngsters that ever since talk of the drive began, our yard has had more than its share of old wheels, old teakettles, old rods and iron bars.

One night last week, in the dark of the moon, I went hastily to put away my car and collided with three different impedimenta before I reached it—first a wheelbarrow, then a cultivator, then a garden rake. It made me recall some long forgotten Dutch, of the more emphatic kind. Sometimes a man feels sure the safest place to be is in the army!

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF JULY 4 WEDDING

Miss Esther Mae Simpson, John Stima Exchange Vows In Chapel at Camp Claiborne, La.; Close Friends Are Attendants.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Esther Mae Simpson, daughter of Grover Simpson, Route 1, to John Stima, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Stima of Shelby, Route 1. The couple exchanged vows in the chapel at Camp Claiborne, La., on July 4. Rev. Callahan performed the ceremony at 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. Stima's wedding costume consisted of a navy blue dress with brown and white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias. Miss Helen Bollinger of South Whitley, Ind., a close friend, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a navy blue dress with white accessories.

Sergt. Vernon Kyle served as best man for Mr. Stima.

Mrs. Stima is remaining at home at present as the bridegroom will be stationed at Camp Claiborne two more weeks. She is a graduate of Weller high school and Mr. Stima is an alumnus of Mansfield Senior high school. Before his induction into the army he was in the electrical assembly department of the Ohio Brass company.

Club Hears How To Face Coming Meat Shortages

Mansfield Health for Victory club members, the women who cook for Westinghouse war workers, heard a complete expose of the subject of meat by Mrs. Julia Kiene, the clubs director, when they met in the company auditorium yesterday afternoon for the seventh monthly meeting.

In emphasizing the importance of knowing meat cuts, Mrs. Kiene used a huge chart displaying a carcass of beef, and gave her audience a detailed analysis of each portion of the animal. "Knowing these different cuts and using a variety in serving meat to your family every day is a necessity now with this country already faced with meat shortages," she said.

In view of the prospect of meat shortage there are only two things to be done, Mrs. Kiene continued. One is to bring about a better distribution of meat through better knowledge of purchasing on the part of housewives, and the other is to adopt a system of rationing. "In either case," she pointed out, "complete knowledge of the variety of meat cuts is important to every wartime homemaker."

"Our job now is to learn all about the 37 different cuts so that we can buy them carefully and cook them properly," Mrs. Kiene said. "Mother Nature has planned wisely, because the food value is exactly the same in all of the portions of the carcass."

In using beef as the subject of her discussion she explained that if you know the sections of this meat, you have, with a few exceptions, the knowledge of pork, veal, and lamb. Meat is a major food source in our diet, because it is an energy-giving food as well as a body-building source. It is a rich source of proteins which is the only food that has the ability to build body cells

"Mrs. Kiene announced that the September Meal Planning Guide distributed yesterday, contains a complete guide for canning in addition to the regular daily menu suggestions. Considerable emphasis is given to the lunch pail since children will soon be returning to school, she said. Because of the importance of the subject of meat, the speaker announced that "how to cook" information will be carried over as the subject for the next meeting to be held in the Westinghouse auditorium, September 24.

After-Dark Gowns Oriental, Exotic

Left to right, pink crepe gown with matching hood; petunia silk jersey embroidered in jet, purple wool cape; blue crepe with silver and bead embroidered yoke, turban-like hat.

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

Glamorous high shades, lavish metallic and bead embroidery and unique shoulder treatments were featured in the collection of evening clothes by Town and Travel-wear of the Waldorf at a recent fashion show.

Brilliant colors for dinner and evening, and sequin and piot-trim for the cocktail hour, were in sophisticated contrast to the more conservative afternoon blacks and browns, the after dark creations frequently fashioned with Oriental exoticism.

Predominant and unusually gay and alluring were the evening gowns whose simple, fitted silhouettes flared out into swirling skirts and were offset by glistening embroidered patterns.

The three gowns shown in the above photographs are excellent examples of the new cover-up look of so many of this season's smartest formal clothes. They are glittering and luxurious, and their allure is subtly brought out through line and drape rather than from the low decolletage of former years.

Long Sleeves, Full Skirts.

Long sleeves and full skirts are another feature that is both chic and practical, because it makes these gowns suitable for double duty in that they can be worn for both important dinner parties, the theater, night clubs and formal evening occasions.

One of the models pictured is unique in its coat-of-mail effect which is achieved by hand crocheting. The dress is a Monteil pink crepe gown and has a matching hood edged with long silken fringe. Long fitted sleeves, a belt of the same material, and a gracefully full skirt are fashion points of the gown.

Majestic in conventional simplicity and Saharan in effect is the dress that shows a distinctly Oriental influence. It is made of Cooper blue crepe with a silver and bead embroidered yoke, smooth kimono sleeves blousing above the gauntlet-length gloves, and two slit pockets at the side seams of the long dirndl skirt. The turban-like hat is made of the same blue as the dress and also is bead embroidered. It has a soft veil flowing down the back, and velvet that goes under the chin and up over the high crown.

The third dress is made of petunia silk jersey embroidered in jet, with a high draped surplice neck and clinging waistline with a front drape skirt. The long purple wool cape is lined with contrasting lavendar, and is richly embroidered over the shoulders with multi-colored stones. Impressive gold earrings are worn with the upswept hair arrangement.

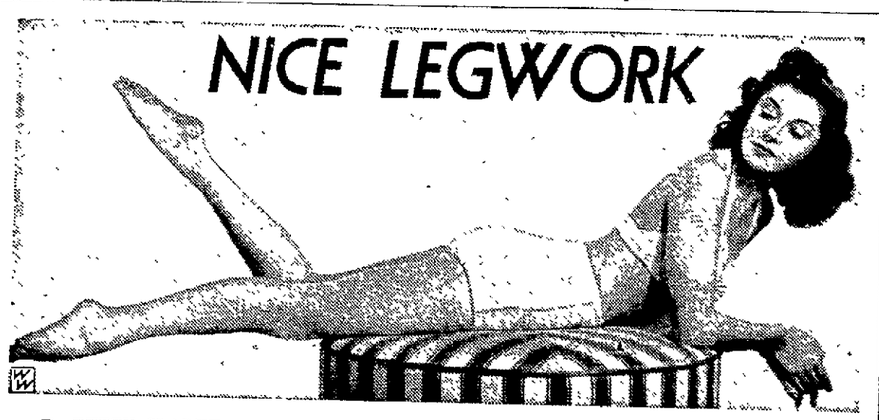
NICE LEGWORK



By BETTY CLARKE
Wide World Beauty Editor

Are you suddenly leg conscious? If not, you're an exception. War is doing strange things to all of us. It has even made the fair sex aware of her under-pinnings. A thin film of make-up for stockings and lower heeled shoes for walking show ankles at their best—or worst—advantage.

If you don't have the slim ankles and shapely calves you'd like, here are some exercises that you ought to practice. Don't expect a miracle to happen over night. It will take a few weeks of exercising before you'll turn a neater ankle.

For the Ankles.

Lie flat on back. Bend right knee, bringing heel near buttocks. Raise and extend left leg. Using ankles as pivot draw clockwise circles in the air with toes. Complete 25 circles, trying to increase the size each time. Change position and make counter-clockwise circles with right toes.

For the Knees.

Repeat above exercise, using knee as pivot and swinging leg in circles.

For the Calves.

Sit on floor, weight on hands which are behinr the body. Pull knees up, feet flat on floor. Slide right leg on floor with a slap. As you pull right leg back toward chest, slide left leg on floor with a slap. Repeat exercise 25 times, alternating legs each time.

Perhaps you're one of the lucky gals endowed with gams that are really something. In that case, you don't need the exercise but you should do a nice job of putting on your liquid stockings. No man appreciates the shapeliest leg if it's a ghastly white, or a dappled brown.

Girl Wants Friendship With Man

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

What do you think about this problem of Betty's, you girls who have worked in offices and who have encountered rather melancholy young married men—and older ones, too—who weren't happy with their wives, or led you to believe so? You know how sorry you can feel for these self-pitying husbands and what companionable fellows they often are.

Should a girl allow herself to form a friendship with such a man, go out to dinner with him, a movie, perhaps a dance, all because she thinks he needs sympathy?

Betty is 23 She's intelligent, fairly well educated, and I am sure she must be pretty. She has a well-paying position in a business office, and a pleasant home She is sweet, generous and warm-hearted Her best boy friend has joined the army

There's a man in her office for whom she's sorry and, as she was lonesome, she went out with him several times: Here is what she writes

'Dear Miss Fairfax

"I have come to know quite well a man of 35 who is employed by the same firm It's no secret that he is married and has two children But I think I'm the only one who knows how unhappy he is and what a selfish hard-hearted, extravagant wife he has She doesn't understand him at all

"I've been out with him several times to lunch, and we get on beautifully together, he is very honorable Now he would like to have me dine with him once or twice a week and see a play I don't see what harm there'd be in it, but I suppose it would have to be secret What do you advise?

"Betty"

Does this interest you? Shall she run the risk—and a large risk it is—that this guarded platonic friendship will promptly develop into a love affair with most painful consequences for the husband the wife and, most of all for herself? Or shall she like a sensible modern girl, face the facts in the case?

Shall she admit that a man has no right to claim a girl's sympathy on the strength of having an uncongenial wife? Shall she call the whole thing off without a day's delay, telling herself that she must never indulge for a married man that warm soft pitying feeling that is innocent maternal, sisterly friendly or whatever you like a feeling that is certain, sooner or later in one way or another, to cost her dear?

This is the course I have advised Betty to follow

My suspicion is that this agreeable young man isn't so unhappily married after all Or perhaps his wife has much more to complain of than he has If his misery is genuine and his life one that cannot be borne he should secure his own freedom before making confidences that are likely to arouse the pity—and later on, the love—of the Bettys that he may meet

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

'Of course I had to get that mirror back into my handbag before he got to the table," Mary went on Even if I had only been adjusting my lipstick I didn't want Steve to spot it

"You're sure he suspected nothing?' my father ased

Positive' she replied 'But from that minute on I think I went quietly crazy

"The only thing I could do was to aid and abet Steve's ever-present desire to lap up all the highballs he could get

"And he was tickled pink tonight when I let him order plenty of drinks for me He never noticed that I poured most of 'em into a potted plant on the ledge close by my hand"

"Did he leave the table again?" my father asked

"Not once," she answered "I turned on as much charm as I could, and tried to keep him entertained Then he got the bright idea of bringing up here a bottle of rare wine—you can imagine the effect after those countless highballs?—and I staged a reluctant but fascinated acquiescence

'I've seen him at parties enough to know he's nearly out already. He can't stand liquor like some of his pals and I warn you, Auntie Madge, he's apt to fall asleep within five minutes after he gets here But I didn't know what else to do"

"You did exactly the right thing," my father told her

Spencer's Plan.

"And now she demanded distaste and excitement queerly mingled in her voice, "where do we go from here?"

'Your Aunt Margaret and I will go into the adjoining apartment, leaving the door ajar," my father said 'If you cannot manage him I have a man there who can But if you can keep him talking until he falls asleep, so I can come in and take off his shoes that will be best of all If we find the paper you will have done your country a magnificent service And you will have to go out with Redfield alone, or with Olina only a few times more, if at all'

'Allah be praised' Mary intoned Then, hearing a clumsy knocking at the door, my father and I hurried to the other apartment As Mary opened the door we heard Redfield's drunken voice hiccuping 'Look what I've brought you my pretty wench' A bottle of wine fit for a queen!"

Noel Intervenes.

But the next second a rush of feet followed him, the door slammed and Noel's hoarse voice said: "Take that, you swine!"

"That" was evidently a blow for as my father and I hurried back we heard a crash, then found Redfield on the floor unconscious and Dicky restraining Noel by main force from hitting him again

Swiftly my father knelt beside the actor, felt his pulse, listened to his breathing and opened an eyelid, then pronounced judgment

'He'll be all right in a few minutes," he said

Then he unlaced the actor's shoes and from one drew the paper he had described to Mary

"Good work, Mary!" he said, "This is the vital paper that was missing When Noel is calmer, Richard, I'll send Adams to take Redfield into the other apartment, where we can attend to him"

It took several minutes to quiet Noel enough to let Dicky loosen his grasp and signal me to get Adams When the unconscious actor had been taken away, Noel, white-lipped and ignoring Mary, addressed himself to me

"I was fair the other time," he said "I put up with everything because of your father's plea. But after this if he thinks I am going to stand by and let Mary go out again alone with that beast, he's mightily mistaken

"Unless Mary tells me that she wants to go with him, he'll take her only over my dead body And if he does, I'm through with her"

By MME QUI VIVE

Insurance surveys prove that overweight is a menace Fat isn't just a body envelope a blanket of adipose padding It forms among the internal organs, sometimes interferes with their functions, especially the heart The skinnies are longer lived than the plumpies. Doctors stress the importance of normal weight, even in little children

If the scales show that more and more poundage is being added every year it is silly not to make an effort to be rid of the extra luggage Carrying it around is, in itself, a tiresome job interfering with ordinary activities Reducing without any ill effects is possible All one has to do is to stop gobbling those delicious groceries that stow themselves away in the form of human suet

But, if a woman hasn't the will to start a slimming campaign, she can at least camouflage the curves by learning how to dress to best advantage. A common error is to have frocks skin tight A loose fit does not reveal bulky outlines A carefully selected foundation garment is first aid to the overweight. The only way to find the right one is to consult an expert corsetiere who has plenty of slick figure tricks up her sleeve Though many models of foundation garments may be on hand it may be necessary to make alterations

She of the abundant areas appears to better advantage in dark colors than light ones because dark tones do not produce a definite silhouette In light-colored robes the anatomical outline is all too apparent There is a type that we all know, the faded blonde of numerous birthdays and too much spread amidships who doles on baby blue dresses In her girlhood days she was the baby doll She closes her eyes to the fact that she cannot always be a bud Petals fade and petals fall When the cherub face is no longer doll-like, but has taken on the cruel lines of time, dark colors are infinitely kinder than light ones

Creamy white is charming for summer frocks for all ages but when we consider blues and pinks, we must do a bit of thinking Especially when we have arrived at the period when we refuse to have candles on our birthday cakes

There should be no well-defined color lines in the robes of the heavy weight, such as a girdle of startling contrast. The decorative element must be supplied by means of soft, flowing draperies that form long lines

Chunky fur collars must be avoided when the neck is short and plump Sleeves must not be snug to accentuate measurements

The extremely short skirt is cruel to the plump, short figure, calling attention to over-developed legs, even kneecaps We wish they wouldn't wear 'em!

SKILL WITH BLACKWOOD

Efficient use of any convention necessitates knowledge of its ramifications and variations and even then a certain amount of skill Nothing can turn players into machines and remove the human element, not even devices like the Blackwood convention One of the most efficient uses comes after a suit or suits previously bid by the opponents has been cue bid by your side The Blackwood convention after that asks only about the top cards in the suits which have not been cue-bid

	♠ None ♥ K Q 10 9 4 3 ♦ K Q J 10 7 ♣ K 4

Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥	1 ♠
2 ♣	2 ♠	3 ♠	Dbl
4 ♥	4 ♠	4 NT	Pass
5 ♣	Dbl	5 ♥

Did you ever see any neater signing off that that? In fact did you ever see any more accurate use of the Blackwood convention? Or any more clever informative bidding than that done by South throughout?

After the first three bids he got his first chance to use his acumen His 2-Clubs bid showing ability to win the first trick of the opponent's suit guaranteeing a strong fit with his partner's hearts and assuring North that he barely lacked an opening bid when he passed, set the stage for what happened later When North on his next turn cue bid the spades, he himself did some nice work as he was preparing to use the Blackwood convention to find out about the aces of the two red suits

When North bid 4-No Trumps, South got the idea perfectly With both black suits cue-bid, he knew North wanted to know about the red aces Having neither of them he responded correctly with the denial of 5-Clubs, causing North then to sign off at 5-Hearts

If South had shown one ace as his response, with 5 Diamonds, North would have small-slammed the hand If he had shown two, North would have grand-slammed it

A player who did not know this phase of the Blackwood might have shown two aces in response to the 4-No Trumps whereupon North might have bid the grand slam, to his woe

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Aug 29

The emphasis seems to be on a day of enjoyment, pleasure seeking and romance attended by domestic, social and cultural celebrations, in which the appeal to beauty, art, music and the emotional urges of life are uppermost However, there are possibilities for good and practical work should the energies and ambitions be turned in that direction

Those whose birthday it is might have a year of definite progress and success with firm foundations secured by practical and constructive efforts centered on such objectives But the accent is placed on the lighter and more alluring and enjoyable aspirations in life with love romance, social and domestic functions to the fore Beauty, art, grace and charm seek fulfillment and pleasure while various forms of self-indulgence may be carried to excess, to be attended by regrettable reactions

A child born on this day should have much practical ability, skill and energy, with expansive ideas and aims, but its real aspirations will be centered on art, beauty, culture, romance and social activities in which it may shine

CHAPTER X

"Oh, no." Amy said warmly, "Her mother She wanted to come today. She was so excited She said she wished she could take Daphne."

"But she wouldn't," he said with bitter conviction.

For a moment he was silent, head down, the clenched fist of one hand lying in the palm of the other. Then he said hesitantly, "It's so important just now—to Daphne—to me. I can't explain But I don't believe we could find anyone who could balance our household as you could. If you could find it in your heart to stay with us a little while—to try us out."

There was something about the shy, quiet goodness of this man, something about his awkward masculine helplessness that made you feel like pledging loyalty to him.

"I'll stay for a month," Amy said.

Afterward she wished she hadn't made the promise, but she wouldn't desert him now.

* * *

"Thank you, Amy," Guy Dillingham said gravely.

He wasn't looking at her—there on the bench beside him. He was watching Daphne gathering dried brown leaves into a pile at the side of the bird house.

But Amy was thinking that again he had used her given name. Not that she wasn't used to hearing men use it. Her little circle in Europe had been informal and the crowd she had gone with in Washington still more so. People like Guy Dillingham and herself were likely to be introduced by their given names But their relationship was different. He was her employer. She couldn't call him Guy. Neither could she smirk and say, "Mr. Dillingham." And so she addressed him very carefully as "you" the rest of the afternoon.

Frani had planned to send a car for them at 5.30, but Guy telephoned the house that he would bring them home.

Driving along the lower road with the hills of the city towering above them on one side—will-o-the-wisp lights appearing in the darkness of park trees; steady lights, red and green, moving on the gleaming surface of the river, loops and festoons of light on the Kentucky shore. Guy and Amy were silent for a time with Daphne half asleep between them. But at length he turned for a second and in the half darkness he gave her his shy sweet smile.

"We had a happy time, didn't we?"

"Yes," she said softly. "It was a happy time."

Frani opened the front door as Guy and Amy and Daphne came up the steps, a sort of wide-eyed Frani, appealing, challenging, as she looked from Guy to Amy, then back to Guy.

"So you went to the zoo, too?" she questioned.

"Daddy came," Daphne babbled, "and oh, Mummy, we saw a little brown monkey. He was so sweet And Tudor bought me pink popcorn because she said you used to have it when you were a little girl."

Frani laughed then, her beautiful low laugh and caught Daphne to her Amy thought, "Oh, but she's lovely Of course Guy Dillingham loves her."

Then she saw that Guy Dillingham wasn't looking at Frani. He was looking at Daphne.

"Miss Tudor'll take you again soon, Snooks," he said.

If we go again Frani shall go with us, she decided.

It all came about so unexpectedly. Frani had gone downtown shopping the morning Guy called from his office to suggest that Amy take Daphne to the zoo again To be sure he asked for Frani, but when he found she wasn't home he talked to Amy suggesting that since he was to have a free afternoon he would meet them. Amy couldn't say "Let's wait until your wife can go." That would sound silly. Guy Dillingham would never understand that sort of thing Then too she had seen Paul walking in the garden just a short time before that had left her shaky and upset

A shower in mid-afternoon caught Daphne and Amy just as they were about to leave the monkey house It caught a number of other persons who were amused by Daphne's conversation with the little brown monkey, who had left his carrots and bananas to peer through the bars of his cage.

"It that Mrs Guy Dillingham's little girl?"

Amy turned to see a plump little woman, with a neat, ugly hat sitting high above her wide face, beaming at Daphne through thick horn-rimmed spectacles

"Yes this is Daphne Dillingham," she told her

"I'm Mrs. Eckert," the woman said. "Are you her nurse?"

"Not nurse, governess" Daphne corrected her in an exact imitation of Frani's manner.

"Just like Frani," the woman exclaimed delightedly.

Then she said apologetically, "I don't suppose Mrs. Dillingham's ever told you about me. Frani I mean Mrs. Dillingham and Paul lived with me from the time they were babies until just two years before Frani was married."

* * *

All this time Daphne had been studying the woman gravely. Suddenly she smiled her complete approval. "You must be my Uncle Paul's Mamma Eckert. He said God didn't give you much style or beauty, but he certainly did give you a big heart."

Mama Eckert laughed heartily. "That sounds like Paul!" She said it lovingly, indulgently, as though she were speaking of a son.

Amy thought this must be the woman whom Paul had spoken of, who had almost adopted the two homeless children She was shocked though to learn that Mama Eckert had not seen Frani's child.

Impulsively she said, "I wish I could take Daphne to your home to see you sometime."

The eyes behind Mrs. Eckert's thick glasses were timid and eager "Do you suppose you could? Papa'd like to see her, too He hasn't been so good just lately. He's home now. He's not working any more. He's got arthritis."

"Do you mean he's home now?" Amy asked. "Perhaps—wait here with Daphne just a moment, will you? I have to telephone Mr. Dillingham."

Perhaps she ought to call Frani first, she thought on her way to the telephone booth. But then she remembered that Frani had left word she wouldn't be home until dinner time. So she called Guy at his office. She told him the whole story. And since it was raining at the zoo, she said, why couldn't they call a taxi and take Daphne to the Eckerts? Then she would call the house and tell Marko to bring the car there for them instead of to the zoo.

Guy didn't seem to understand at first. He didn't even seem to get the name "Mama Eckert." Amy explained all over again

"She's a darling!" she concluded. "I think Daphne's fallen in love with her already!"

"Why yes," he responded doubtfully. "Whatever you decide will be all right. But don't bother to call the house. I'll have my secretary do that And I'll drive by and pick the two of you up on the way home."

When Amy had bundled Mrs Eckert and Daphne, already chattering like two old friends, into a taxi, Amy recalled that note of doubt in Guy Dillingham's voice, and she wondered whether her rush of warm feeling for Mama Eckert had led her into a blunder.

The Eckert home was one of a row of narrow old brick houses at the top of one of Cincinnati's hills. From its old-fashioned bay window you could see half of the downtown section, the tall modern skyscrapers, the broad proud boulevard that was the old canal, and a section of a little cobblestone old world street that climbed the hill higgledy-piggledy as though it didn't make any particular difference whether it ever reached the top.

In that bay window all day long sat Papa Eckert, playing phonograph records He was a small, wiry man with bent shoulders and a thatch of vigorously curly white hair and dark eyes that glowed as he lay back in his chair listening to the thunderous voice of Chaliapin

But when Mama Eckert ushered Amy and Daphne into the clean but ugly living room he lifted the needle from the record "Be still" he commanded the great basso, in a voice that had a soft, Swiss accent. "Why—it's the little Frani!"

"It's Frani's little Daphne," Mama Eckert said

"Of course it is" he said happily. "Come here little one."

When Daphne came and stood beside him, smiling and confident he lifted one of the springy black curls. "The hair is like the mother's. But not the eyes."

"My eyes are like my father's," Daphne said. "Our maid, Margaret, says my father has deep thinking eyes But part of me's mean like my mother."

There was hearty, though abashed, laughter at that. Then Mama Eckert, wiping her eyes, said: "And this is Miss Tudor that's Daphne's nurse—no governess. She's the girl Paul talks about all the time."

Amy blushed furiously. There are times when the ability to talk with diplomats over the dinner table is useless. Amy was unable to cope with Mama Eckert, who, though you could see she wasn't a gossip, had a passion for facts.

"You remember Paul told us how they came from Washington together?" she went on. "And Paul was so worried because she didn't have a job. Then he got her to go out to Frani's. But—excuse me, Miss Tudor. Won't you take off your things and take a seat?"

So Amy "took a seat" in a funny old patent rocker with huge stiff crocheted doilies on its back and arms while Mama Eckert unbuttoned Daphne's little plaid reversible coat.

"Isn't she cute?" she exclaimed, while Daphne straightened her plump little figure and looked every inch the prima donna. "Look at the lovely hand embroidery on her dress! Did your Mother—Oh, no. Frani wouldn't embroider. Or sew I used to make all her doll clothes . . . Look here, Daphne, would you like to play with your mother's doll?"

She went upstairs and came back with a life-size baby doll, much battered, but exquisitely dressed in long old-fashioned baby clothes. Daphne clutched it to her with much more affection than she had ever shown for the dozen or so expensive dolls in her nursery at home.

"Why doesn't she come and get it?" she demanded.

Mama Eckert's eyes filled with tears "She hasn't been here for a long time," she said. "But I must make some coffee and get some little cakes from the kitchen."

They all ate little spiced cup cakes and cookies with aniseed on them while Papa Eckert put the "Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz on the phonograph and Mama Eckert bustled back from the kitchen urging Amy, "Here, have more cream in your coffee You don't have to worry about getting fat You wouldn't believe it, would you, but I used to be little like you—and all just eyes"

Then suddenly Amy was all eyes, for the door opened and Paul burst into the room his hat in his hand, his crisp black hair wet with rain.

New Industries Needed To Boom Trade After War

CLEVELAND — (INS) — American industries must create new laboratories, from which will come new goods, new services, new industries and new jobs in order to prevent the economic dislocation which follows war-time prosperity, according to H. K. Ferguson, president of the Ferguson company, industrial engineers and builders of Cleveland and New York.

"We must make certain that America not only turns out the best fighting machine in the world," he said, "but should also have as a goal the development of products and processes that will keep our assembly lines rolling when the government no longer finds it necessary to order the articles of war that are now keeping factories in operation 24 hours a day."

Russia developed the oil output of Baku, Caspian seaport, from 9 million tons in 1920 and 30 millions tons in 1940.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: My friend Eddie Cantor, not satisfied with being one of the nation's most beloved comedians, has an idea that writing a column in his spare time would be a soft touch. To prove it, here is what he pecked out on my typewriter.—D. K.)

Eddie Cantor Says—

I think I could write a column. Why not? All you need are timely items.

Items like this, for instance:

I wonder when Winston Churchill is going to make another trip to America? You'd imagine our president would want to reciprocate. Well, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if any day now Johnny Doughboy Found a Roosevelt in Ireland.

I understand that before Winston Churchill returned to England, F. D. R. wanted him to go to somewhere in the Pacific in a glass bottom boat to review the Japanese fleet.

Coming up on the train last night from San Francisco, I met a man with five children—all boys. Why doesn't the FBI do something about these hoarders?

Gee, I bet I could write a column at that. It's easy. All you have to do is to get things out of a newspaper, like the sugar shortage. I bet you could get a smile out of the restaurant near San Diego and how it is meeting the shortage. First they line up six cups of coffee, then a midget runs along the counter with a lump of sugar on a Yo-Yo.

It's not hard to get material. For instance, when I played March Field a few weeks ago, I met a young farmer boy from Indiana. I said:

"How do you like this army life, son?"

I smile even now, when I think of his answer:

"It's all right, but this staying in bed until six is making a bum out of me!"

Everybody was so nice to me out at March Field. What a thrill I got out of going up in a plane and having the pilot doing a lot of funny business with the ship. He didn't know, until I told him, that I had more than one hundred hours in the air, so he let me take the controls. When I got through he said, "Cantor, you certainly are making an ace out of yourself." I think that's what he said.

I could keep up this sort of thing indefinitely — but why? What do I get out of it? Dorothy Kilgallen is always asking me "What makes people laugh?"

What makes people laugh? Anything that's funny. It might be a line, a situation, a joke, or a physical gesture.

The ways of a comedian are as varied and mysterious as the ways of a maid and a man. No two successful comedians use the same methods to evoke laughs, just as no two women use the same methods to captivate a man. While one may rely purely on jokes, another's forte may be a silly elevation of the eyebrow. I know comedians who merely have to move their lips convulsively or shake their bodies like a jellyfish to get laughs.

The "gag" comedian predominates in this country because the gag is the simplest and most direct route to a laugh. Since each joke is a distinct story, this method is the best because it is almost certain to please. If one gag doesn't amuse, the next invariably does.

Then there is the "method" or "situation" comedian. This is by far the most difficult type of fun-making since the laughs come not from pointed jokes, but from movements physical and vocal, and situations humorously built up by the talent of the comedian. The "dialect" comedian enjoys a place all his own in the theater. Either you like a dialectician wholeheartedly, or you pass him up altogether.

Personally I prefer the one true type of comedian — the pantomimist. He relies solely on his own comic gifts, not on jokes or written material. I give you my favorite comedian—Charlie Chaplin.

I could keep on like this and first thing you know, I'd have a column finished, but I'm not going to do it. Let Dorothy Kilgallen do her own work. I'm too tired!

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Jimmy Cagney is looking ahead to a day when Jimmy Cagney's name on a movie marquee won't draw in weary vagrants to snooze the night away on plush seats—free.

That's a funny piece of forward-looking for Jimmy Cagney today—for a Cagney who now has his potentially biggest hit fresh on the stands, for a Cagney who after "Yankee Doodle Dandy" could write his own ticket on any lot he chose.

Coons

But that is exactly why Jimmy Cagney, as clever a fellow as he is dynamic, is doing what he's doing. Out at Warner Bros., where they made "Yankee," they sigh hopefully, muttering invocations which add up to a gentle hope that United Artists will dissolve maybe, or that the government will freeze people in the jobs they held last January 1, or — better yet — that Cagney will change his mind.

He won't. He's going into his own company, his and brother Bill's, in United Artists. They're going to make pictures, Jimmy the star, Bill the producer, just as on "Yankee." Shades of Charles Ray, Gloria Swanson and other stars who came a-cropper doing their own productions! But the Cagney deal isn't like that. Only a Croesus can gamble his own money on his pictures nowadays. The Cagneys aren't doing it.

Jimmy told about it out at his house the other day — between telephone calls. He had a few of those: he's chairman of Hollywood's War Activities committee, which is some job; he had a call to lead a shipyard community sing, which he accepted; he had others about the local bond-selling premiere of his picture—for which he couldn't use his own $25,000 bond ticket because he'd be off on a bond-selling tour. He would jump up, with George M. Cohan vitality, chin into the telephone, come back and take up the talk where he left off.

He's been at Warner's a dozen years—except for the couple of films he did elsewhere after winning his release in court.

"How many stars can you name today—stars who were here 10 years ago?" he asked.

I named a few but I got his point. I had to admit that those I named had seen their better days. But Cagney himself?

"There comes a time," he said, "and it's smart to plan for it before it comes. Right now is the time for me. If you like the business, and want to stay in it, you plan to go into production—before you have to."

They're going to make first some light story—with a pertinent war message punched home under the lightness.

HANNAH ASKS FOR UNITY AS OFL PICKS HIM

Moves to Consolidate Unions After Donnelly Withdraws From Labor Contest.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Phil Hannah, newly-elected secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Federation of Labor, set out today to "consolidate the OFL's strength."

Hannah, 38-year-old chief of the Cleveland Gasoline Station Operators and Garage Employes Union, was elected unanimously at the Federation convention yesterday after elderly Thomas J. Donnelly of Columbus, who held the post for 29 years, withdrew from the contest.

Hannah, who campaigned for younger OFL leadership, immediately called for a "united federation" He announced that he favored joint meetings of the OFL and Ohio state building and construction trades council executive boards to "consolidate our strength on legislative and other matters." He said this would be the first step of a "strengthening" program.

White-haired Donnelly, in his 70's, dropped out after the Hannah group won five contested vice-presidencies, taking one by a decisive vote.

The Hannah group showed its strength with the election of William Finegan of Cleveland over Stanley Ogg of Hamilton, incumbent first vice president. The vote was 627 to 390.

Donnelly told delegates he was not withdrawing to avoid a fight but that since Hannah candidates had won other offices "my election would not bring harmony in the coming years."

The delegates voted Donnelly a pension, the amount to be stated in a resolution. His salary as secretary-treasurer was $5,000 a year.

President Michael J. Lyden of Youngstown, re-elected to a third three-year term without opposition, heads the list of officers to be installed at the end of today's business session.

GOING TO CAMP

Scout Leaders to Map Coming Year's Program.

Scout leaders and older scouts of Troop No. 6 will map out their program for the coming year next week when they hold their annual officers' training camp on the bluffs overlooking the Clearfork near Newville.

About 14 patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders will leave Saturday afternoon for a week's training in cooking, swimming, nature study, and the building of camp shelters and beds. Instruction will be given by Scoutmaster Jim Turner. Scouts will plan next year's meetings around the evening council fire.

According to Turner, the week's camp will be highlighted by a "Commando" hike. Scouts will be divided into two competing squads, each provided with a map and compass. During the all-day hike over a rough and heavily wooded terrain, the scouts attempt to reach their final destinations without being seen by members of the opposing squad.

On Thursday, parents and friends of the scouts have been invited to a picnic at the camp.

URGES CONVICTS FOR ARMY DUTY

Ohio Warden Says He Has 450-500 Who Would Make Good Soldiers.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Warden Frank Henderson of Ohio penitentiary feels he has 450-500 men he could recommend as soldiers in the army.

This belief was based on a summer of drilling by prisoners who were given basic military training under the guidance of Henderson, former head of the Ohio national guard.

A number of technicalities would have to be ironed out before the men could enter the army, however.

The army now admits only first offenders. Henderson has some second and third offenders he believes would make good men for the fighting forces.

Before even some of the first offenders could be released, the parole board would have to alter its attitude on some cases, the warden said. Other convicts would require sentence commutations.

"If the technicalities were waived, we could furnish 450 to 500 men for the army," Henderson said. "And they would make good soldiers."

Youthful Driver Hurt When Truck Skids, Overturns

Jack A. Condon, 16, of 142 Rowland avenue, escaped with scalp cuts and left leg abrasions when the delivery truck he was driving skidded into a curb and overturned at the Middle park entrance on West Fourth street late yesterday. He was released after receiving treatment at General hospital.

Young Condon, driver for a market, told Motorcycle Patrolmen Arthur Conrady and Earl Korn that he was driving about 25 miles an hour when his truck went into a skid and piled against the curbing. The right side of the truck was damaged badly.

Mrs. Harry B. Buchan, 973 Park avenue west, suffered a slight ankle injury yesterday evening when the auto she was driving struck the car of E. C. Crall, Bucyrus, which stopped suddenly on Park avenue east near Benton street.

Mrs. Grace Lehner, 247 Helen avenue, and Paul Dietzel, 99 West Third street, escaped injury when their autos collided at West Fourth street and Weldon avenue.

No damage was reported in a collision at Orange and Adams streets of cars driven by Earl Pollock, 204 Lind avenue, and James Bowman, 478 Louise avenue.

M'NUTT ASKS SCHOOLS TO TAKE ON NEW, HEAVIER WAR DUTIES

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator and war manpower commission chairman, called on the nation's 31,000,000 teachers and students today to shoulder "new and heavier war duties" and asked school boards to reconsider their programs and responsibilities in the light of war needs.

"I urge you to put aside any thought of education as usual," he said in an address prepared for the opening of an institute sponsored by the U. S. office of education wartime commission.

McNutt announced yesterday that every able bodied college youth was destined for the armed forces and should realize that he cannot have assurance of remaining in school "for any specified period of time."

The announcement was made in a commission-approved report prepared by the special committee on utilization of colleges and universities for the purposes of the war, headed by Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue university.

Mindful of a prospective serious shortage of teachers, McNutt urged particularly that teachers stay at their posts unless drafted by the army or navy or war industry for "work of higher priority rating."

"It is the patriotic duty of teachers to continue teaching, despite the lure of service on other fronts and despite the lure of higher wages," he said.

Aluminum Workers Reject WLB Wage Decision.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(INS)—CIO aluminum workers in six Alcoa plants have rejected the war labor board division denying them a $1 a day wage increase, and simultaneously authorized their president to call a strike in the war-vital industry if necessary, it was learned today.

Plants which voted to back union's executive board to the limit were: New Kensington, Pa.; Alcoa, Tenn.; Badin, N. C.; Edgewater, N. J.; Bridgeport, Conn., and Detroit, Mich. Only one plant unit was missing, Bauxite, Ark., and union officials expected the vote there to be the same as in other districts.

International President N. A. Zonarich was expected to file exceptions with the war labor board, and if they are refused, to appeal to President Roosevelt for intervention.

BLACKOUT'S ACCIDENTAL

VETERAN DIES

Joseph E. Doerman Stricken at Vets' Hospital.

Joseph E. Doerman, 53, veteran of World War I, died last night at the Brecksville Veterans hospital after a brief illness. His home was at 63 Wood street.

Mr. Doerman was born in Mansfield on Oct. 16, 1888 and lived here the greater part of his life. He was a well-known shoe salesman, having been employed by Nobils Shoe store. He was a member of the First Lutheran church.

Survivors are his mother, Mrs. Sarah Doerman; a son, Neil Doerman, both of Mansfield; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Feazel of Wellington and Miss Mary Doerman of Mansfield; and a brother, Henry Doerman of Rosedale, Calif.

The body has been removed to the Wappner funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Laff-a-Day

"The Major's waiting for this."

Harold W. Arlin, president of the Mansfield board of education, is having a lot of fun telling friends about a recent experience that wasn't so funny at the time. Arlin was taking a part of his vacation to paint his house and was high up on a ladder when he discovered he had aroused a nest of wasps he would have to pass on the way down. His wife, seeing his predicament, laughed heartily and said she guessed he would have to "make a run for it." Arlin finally prevailed upon her to throw him a small rug which he used as a shield while he carefully climbed down. He successfully eluded the wasps' "dive-bomber" tactics.

Miss Mary Becker, former Plymouth girl, really made the "long voyage home" to get back to Plymouth this week for a visit with friends. Making her way from Cairo, Egypt, where she has resided since 1937, Miss Becker traveled 11,000 miles which took her across 12 countries and the Atlantic ocean. She made the trip in just a week, arriving in Miami, Fla., on Aug. 12 by Pan-American plane. Only 82 hours in actual flying time was consumed in the trip home.

Aid to torpedoed seamen will literally come from the skies, the local Red Cross executive office was informed today. As the result of a new rescue project launched jointly by the navy department and the American Red Cross buoyant waterproof bags containing emergency food and water rations and medical supplies will be dropped by navy patrol blimps to seamen drifting in lifeboats and rafts. In addition to food, water and medical supplies the kits will also contain a can opener, a flashlight, cigarets and matches.

Richland county 4-H club members were disappointed when the county fair was called off, but they didn't let that keep them from doing a good job with their summer projects, County Agent George B. Ganyard has found. The county agent is scoring boys' garden and livestock projects which are better than usual, he said. In Springfield township he found two boys about 11 years old who have tended a truck garden of nearly an acre with garden hoes as their only equipment. Huge quantities of vegetables have already been taken from the garden.

Board 'Freezes' Retail Liquor Trade In State

COLUMBUS —(UP) — Ohio's retail liquor business was "frozen" today for the remainder of the war.

The state liquor control board took unprecedented action when it stopped issuance of new beer or liquor licenses, in an order filed with the secretary of state.

The board's action came in response to widespread criticism of liquor and vice conditions existing in the vicinity of Ohio military bases.

Only those applications for permits filed before Aug. 26 will be considered by the board until its order is rescinded.

Harry Hawley, chairman of the liquor board, said that no time limit was put on the "freeze" order but that members generally believed it would extend "for the duration."

The liquor board also is considering the withholding of permit funds from local subdivisions that do not cooperate with the state in enforcing liquor laws and regulations.

SOLDIER SLAIN AS HE TRIES TO USE PISTOL

Second Service Man Wounded When He Tries To Aid Officer.

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI — A military policeman killed an army deserter on a train at the Cincinnati Union terminal early today when the deserter tried to shoot his guard with a pistol he had concealed in his trousers.

The deserter's army identification tag bore the name of W. C. Blythe and, as next of kin, Mrs. E. Blythe, Detroit.

Pvt. Edward Foster, 21, of Detroit, who had been absent without leave from Fort Knox, Ky., but was returning voluntarily, was wounded during the struggle between Blythe and the military policeman.

Blythe was shot through the chest by the policeman in the lavatory of one of the train's coaches.

Foster told authorities here that he had met the military policeman at the Detroit terminal last night. He said the other man, who wore civilian clothes, was with the policeman.

Foster said that Blythe told him during the ride that he had a gun.

"He showed it to me and said he was going to bump off the policeman," Foster said. "I told the policeman and he said he'd be on the lookout for trouble."

When the train stopped at Cincinnati, Blythe went to the lavatory, Foster said.

"I heard a scuffle when the policeman followed him, so I went in to help," Foster said at a hospital. "As I stepped through the entrance I felt something sting my shoulder and I guessed I was shot. Then I saw the policeman shoot Blythe."

Blythe died quickly. Foster was given first aid at the terminal.

The Social Security card found in Blythe's clothing bore the name "William Strength." A personal identification card bore the name "Roy Poplinskay" or "Paplinskay," Detroit.

PLAN TIRE MEET

Industrialists Will Hear Talk on Transport Needs.

Representatives of Mansfield industrial firms will receive pointers on the establishment of "tire-saving" plans for their individual plants at a meeting of the Mansfield transportation committee Monday at 7 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference rooms.

Eugene A. Porter, service manager of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company and inspection chairman of the transportation committee, will present figures concerning the performance of pneumatic tires.

C. H. Smaltz, chairman of the committee, has urged all industries to send representatives to the meeting.

"No civilian tires are being manufactured and those now in the hands of jobbers and dealers are for sale only through the rationing plan," said Smaltz. "You must prepare against an emergency or workmen will be unable to travel to and from your plants."

INSIDE CITY ON RESURFACE JOB

Crews Putting Asphalt Down Near Pennsy Subway.

Work of resurfacing Route 42, starting on Ashland hill a week ago, had reached well into the city today with crews laying an asphalt top over the brick paving of Park avenue east near the Pennsylvania railroad subway.

Work of laying new water lines on Park avenue will be completed in time not to hamper the resurfacing, Waterworks Superintendent O. C. Kalbfleisch said today. Last night's heavy rains interfered somewhat today with the filling in of water line trenches, Kalbfleisch said.

FIND PIGEON

Loudonville Boys Care For Injured Army-Trained Bird.

LOUDONVILLE—Two Loudonville boys, Russell and Glenn Reynolds found a carrier pigeon near the railroad depot yesterday and upon examination found it was a U. S. Army pigeon.

The pigeon was unable to continue its flight because of a broken wing, so the Reynolds boys took it home to nurse it until the wing has healed.

WILL TRAIN 4,800

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A program for training 4,800 northern Ohio civilian employes of the army supply services was announced by the war manpower commission. They will be trained to instruct 40,000 other army civilian employes in job methods.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

For boys and girls between 10 and 12 years of age two brief adventure stories have just been published. One tells of the search for a secret tunnel known to have been used during the revolution. The other deals with the Amish people of Pennsylvania.

'WAY DOWN CELLAR, by Phil Strong—When Tubby and Beans and Frank discovered the late parson's tunnel they made Old Lady Dengler and her maid believe there might be ghosts of the parson still at large. Then the Priscillas became alarmed when the cookies disappeared which should have been their refreshments. Finally, when the Tories initiated the Patriots into a new and larger secret society, the mystery was out and once more the policeman could return to his regular beat.

AMISH MOVING DAY, by Ella Maie Seyfert — David and Martha Wenger lived on a farm in Lancaster county, but one night Father Wenger heard of the new colony in Maryland. After a few days of thought "the inner light" helped him to decide to move there where they could have a larger farm and their own Amish "schulhaus" again.

NEW BOOK TELLS OF PICTURING RUSSIAN WAR

Camera Expert and Husband Write Volume Topping List at Library.

When Margaret Bourke-White and her husband, Erskine Caldwell, reached Russia in May, 1941, they expected trouble and found it.

Their experiences are set down in the former's new book, "Shooting the Russion War," the story of the greatest assignment in Miss Bourke-White's career.

The book, that is now available at the Mansfield Public library, is a highly personal account with emphasis on the men and women to whom the author talked as well as photographed behind the lines in villages, towns and cities.

SAM SMALL FLIES AGAIN by Eric Knight, author of "This Above All," contains a group of amusing and imaginative tales of Sam Small, the little man who can answer any knotty question that comes up at the Spread Eagle Tavern—including "The Flying Yorkshireman." Some of the time he is an ordinary mortal; the rest of the time—well, you'll have to read to believe how he learned to fly like a bird; how he copes with the two selves of his split personality, and how he foiled an invasion of England.

THE FABULOUS PEOPLE by Robert Hubner is peopled with a group of rather fantastic characters—expatriates and newspapermen—and has for its setting, Tokyo in 1939, with the Chinese war in full swing. While the novel may be read as a witty, satiric picture of uprooted people—or as a revealing picture of Japanese mentality—it also tells the bitter-sweet love story of the narrator, an American journalist in love with a Japanese teahouse girl.

ISLAND NOON by Mabel Louise Robinson is the story of an American girl who fashioned her own destiny, on a tiny island off the Maine coast. Faced with desolation when her love affair with a young sea captain crashed, she found shelter with his older and hunch-backed brother Mark, who salvaged her empty life as he salvaged his barren little island.

Robert Strausz-Hupe undertakes to answer many crucial questions in his new book, GEOPOLITICS. What is the global scheme of political strategy upon which the German high command has staked the fate of the world? Why did Germany attack Russia? Why has Russia not joined the war effort against Japan? The answer to these and many others lies in Geopolitics—the struggle for space and power—and the oconception of Major General Karl Hausofer.

PICTURES IN THE HALLWAY by Sean O'Casey continues the author's autobiography, begun in "I Knock At the Door." The present volume covers the years between the death of Parnell and the Boer War. These were the years of his adolescence and youth, when he was acquiring and losing jobs in Dublin, eagerly filling his head with history and poetry, and learning to know about love.

The small squad at Mt. Vern is equally understandle. The Jackets still seem be in the doldrums resultg from a long year of petty ghting over football and sketball letters, missing uipment, and failure to ep training.

I don't know who was right wrong in that athletic rap at Mt. Vernon last year, t the fact that the fight s recorded in most of the pers in Ohio, through the rious wire services, didn't the school any good. And parently the fight didn't prove the spirit of potential cket athletes.

The first practice ordinariwould draw a squad of re than 32 players.

Dodgers Finally Recover

Stop Upsurging Cards In Series Finale.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE world series is beginning to look safe again for the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

What little excitement has been breathed into the two major league pennant races in recent days apparently was expelled yesterday as the Brooklyn Dodgers bounced out of their lethargy and quelled the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 and the onrush of the Boston Red Sox was checked by the Cleveland Indians 4-2.

The Dodgers' victory yesterday—their first in four starts against the Cards—sent the Brooks into the last month of the season with a 5½ game lead.

The Cardinals pitched Max Lanier last night, two days after he had held Brooklyn to four hits Monday night. The stocky southpaw wasn't up to the job, however, and was shelled for five successive singles and three runs in the fourth. Then another lefthander, Ernie White, came in and was pelted for an additional single and Brooklyn's final run.

The veteran Curt Davis, once a Cardinal, hurled the Dodger revival. He held the Redbirds to eight scattered hits and knocked in two of Brooklyn's runs with a single.

The Red Sox' string of nine consecutive victories not only was broken in the only American league game, but Cecil (Tex) Hughson's skein of 11 straight pitching triumphs also was snapped as Jim Bagby of the Indians hurled a five-hitter.

A better pitching battle than this, though, was given a small gathering of fans at Cincinnati where the New York Giants beat the Reds 2-0 by bunching five hits in the 11th inning after Harry Feldman and Ray Starr had labored through ten scoreless innings.

* * *

Hank Gornicki provided a oneman show at Pittsburgh by pitching two-hit ball and hitting a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-0 victory over the Boston Braves. Elbie Fletcher also homered.

Bears Favored To Beat Stars

College Team Rated 3 Touchdowns Short.

CHICAGO —(AP)— One of the finest teams of college all stars in nine years is figured by football wisemen to be about three touchdowns shy of matching the Chicago Bears tonight in Soldier field.

* * *

George Halas ran his national professional champions through final practices last night under the lights of Soldier field, where a record crowd of 101,200 persons will flock tonight. The customers will pay approximately $300,000 of which at least $160,000 will go to army and navy relief funds.

* * *

Both teams are in peak form and confident of victory. A triumph for the All-Stars would break a three-year monopoly held by the champions of the National professional football league and would be the third win for the collegians in the nine years of the series. Two games ended in ties.

Bob Zuppke, noted for springing upsets, has coached the collegians into a highly fighting mood during the last month, filling them with ultra-fancy, fan-pleasing plays along the way.

Bagby Scores 15th Victory

Tribe Spirit Bolstered As It Takes on Yanks.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Managing to salvage one out of four contests at Boston after some drastic changes in the lineup, the fourth-place Cleveland Indians came here today to open a two-game series with the tough Yankees

Its spirit bolstered by yesterday's 4 to 2 triumph which ended the Red Sox' string of consecutive victories at nine, the Tribe picked Chubby Dean to oppose Red Ruffing in the New York opener.

* * *

Jim Bagby outpitched Tex Hughson, the league's leading hurler, yielding only five hits to Tex's seven for the Tribe yesterday. It was Bagby's 15th victory and snapped Hughson's number of straight triumphs at 11.

It was the first in their last 19 starts in which the Indians scored more than three runs.

A two-run rally in the ninth broke the three-run limit that has dogged the Tribe. Hughson hit Ken Keltner, Indians' lead-off man. Jeff Heath singled, sending Keltner to third and Les Fleming walked to fill the bases.

Pinch hitting for Grimes, Dean flied out and Weatherly singled to score Keltner. Heath scored from third on Bagby's long drive.

Red Birds Again Lead Association

(By United Press)

Columbus held first place in the American association today, a half-game ahead of Milwaukee and one game ahead of Kansas City.

The Redbirds defeated Indianapolis in a 15-inning thriller last night while St. Paul trounced Milwaukee and Kansas City beat Minneapolis. Toledo dropped a close one to Louisville, fourth place incumbents, to remain in the second division.

Indianapolis scored in the first inning of their game with Columbus but Jimmy Gleeson tied it up with a homer in the fourth. Then 10 scoreless innings followed with the Redbirds finally breaking the ice in the fifteenth with three runs to win 4 to 1. Harry Brecheen went all the way for Columbus and allowed 10 hits.

St. Paul knocked Milwaukee out of the league lead with a 16 to 2 shellacking. The Saints made only 14 hits in garnering their 16 runs Eight markers were made in the fourth inning. Ted Gullic accounted for one of the Brewers' runs in the second inning with a homer. Grant and Powell made four-baggers for the Saints.

Kansas City kept pace with Columbus by defeating Minneapolis 7 to 4. The Blues scored five of their runs in the third inning Ken Sears hit a home run for the Blues in the second inning.

Toledo outhit Louisville 12 to 7 but couldn't match the Colonels' late inning scoring. Louisville scored in each of the last three innings to win 4 to 3.

RETAIN LEAD

ZANESVILLE —(AP)— Charleston maintained its two and one-half game lead in the Mid-Atlantic league race today. The Senators went 10 innings last night to defeat Zanesville 2 to 1 while second-place Dayton edged Canton 3 to 2. Springfield downed Erie 3 to 1.

Monte Retires

Pitcher Monte Pearson, above, has notified Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds that he has decided to retire from baseball. Pearson, one-time star of the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees, was granted a year's leave of absence last spring in the hope that the rest would improve his ailing pitching arm. Now, Pearson says, he is convinced his arm will never regain its old skill.

The Jamboree will appear at four, and possibly five, performances and will present their regular Saturday night broadcast from the Madison stage. Lazy Jim Day, "Happy" Hal O'Halloran and Hugh Cross and his radio pals are among the other attractions. "Juke Box Jenny," with Harriet Hilliard and Ken Murray is the second attraction.

Clay Classic Decided Today

Unknown Expected To Take Grand American.

VANDALIA —(AP)— They'll decide the $10,000 Grand American handicap today—and indications were that an unknown, as in the past 42 years, would cop the clay target game's biggest prize.

Although 185 of the big field of 935 shooting stars failed to get a crack at the targets yesterday, due to a late start, the performances of the others hinted that the experts were no better off than before a schedule change was made in their favor.

The route was changed this year from 100 to 200 targets. The amateur trapshooting association held that the increase might help the experts who are placed far back of the traps, giving them a chance against novices nearer the traps.

However, two practically unheard-of stars headed the parade today as the field hit the last lap Out front were Everett Addy, 48, a sheet metal worker from Springfield, O., and 60-year-old A. H. Ammann, a duck hunter and recoil pad manufacturer from Peotone, Ill.

The leaders, who may stay out front, scored 97 of 100, Addy from 19 yards and Ammann from 22. Back of them were nine marksmen with scores of 96, and 14 with 95's—all of which had a chance to crash the king row today.

Those scoring 96 included: James W. Light, Greenville, O.; Jerry Tanner, Kings Mills, O; and Paul G. Butterbaugh, Lancaster, Ohio.

They Agree Now Sugar Is Sweet

CHICAGO—(UP)—It's true what they say about Ray (Sugar) Robinson.

Midwestern fans were willing today to join the eastern fight crowd in acclaiming the 21-year-old Harlem boy as one of the smoothest welterweight ringmen in history after his sensational one round knockout victory over Tony Motisi, rugged Chicago mitter, at Comiskey park last night.

A crowd of 7,889 paid $17,738 68 to see the program, the only major outdoor attraction of the summer in Chicago

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Bert Bell and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers headed for tonight's All Star game in Chicago with the idea of signing Bill Dudley and Andy Tomasic, but Dudley is more likely to go back to Virginia as freshman coach . . . Charlie Gillham, who came all the way from Juneau to the Grand National trapshoot, says there will be very little big game hunting in Alaska this year . . . What about those Jap destroyers?

LAST LAUGH

When Comedian, Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson invited the fight mob to a party for their scrapper, Cleo Shans, the other day one of their gags was to serve the meal without any cutlery . . . It fell very flat when several beachcombers, eating as usual, didn't notice the difference until the knives and forks arrived with the coffee.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Latest story hereabouts is that Leo Durocher may return to the active list so as to be eligible for World Series play in case he's needed . . . George McAfee, on furlough from the Jacksonville naval station, got a free trip to Chicago to sit on the Bears' bench tonight. And you can bet George Halas, who is paying the bills, would like to send him against the All-Stars . . . Toledo's golf tournament for the 37th Division Canteen fund drew 431 entries and well over $1,500. Other Ohio cities are planning similar events.

PERMAN DEFAULTS IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Rain washed out action in the News-Journal city tennis tournament last evening, but the tourney advanced nevertheless.

George Perman, Shelby racquet wielder, announced his default to Charles Alderson in the boys' singles, due to the fact that Perman is now busy practicing football with the Shelby high school squad.

World Series Aids Red Cross and USO

CHICAGO—(AP)—Baseball's offer to share $357,544 to $679,006 of its world series kitty was extended today to two organizations—the U. S. O. and the Red Cross—and needed only their formal acceptance and subsequent approval by government authorities to go into effect this fall.

* * *

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said that to his knowledge the world series never before has been conducted as a benefit.

* * *

After conferring yesterday with Presidents Will Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National league, Landis revealed the plan.

Landis drew up 1942 series estimates based on last fall's classic between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, which teams appear headed for an encore meeting this year.

CHEERING WAR NEWS BOOSTS STOCK MARKET

Steels, Motors, Rails, and Oils Pick Up Fractions on Day's Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Aided by a better brand of war news, the stock market continued to move forward by fractions today.

Gainers included U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Standard Oil (NJ) and Homestake Mining.

Some market comfort was derived from the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing public spending broadened this week in sections of the country. While retail sales dollar volume for the nation remained 1 to 5 per cent under the like period last year, it was recalled that at that time a big buying rush was on.

Year-to-year increases of 1 to 5 per cent were reported in the south and southwest and 3 to 7 per cent on the Pacific coast. The northwest suffered a lag of 2 to 4 per cent, the east 4 to 9 per cent. New England 2 to 5 per cent and the middle west 3 to 7 per cent.

Hold 2 Youths at Ashland In Theft Of 3 Automobiles

ASHLAND — Two youths, who escaped recently from a Pennsylvania industrial school, were in the hands of Ashland county authorities today after having stolen three automobiles in a three-day joy-ride throughout northern Ohio.

The youths, one 15 and the other 16, were captured early this morning in Canton driving the third stolen car, taken from Ashland yesterday afternoon. They were returned here for questioning.

According to Ashland county authorities, the boys said they escaped from the Thornehill boys industrial school at Warrendale, Pa., several days ago. After hitch-hiking to Cleveland, they stole a car which they drove to Sandusky. There, they stole another car to take them to Ashland.

Arriving in Ashland, they stole a car owned by Miles Aber, Ashland, but instead of abandoning the Sandusky car here, they drove it and the Aber auto to Wooster where they left it, continuing their trip in the Aber car.

Ashland county authorities are questioning the youths and holding them pending disposition of their case.

mittee, also stated today that a force of more than 4,000,000 men, which President Roosevelt says is now under arms, will be augmented by a "considerable" number of married men now in Class 3-A.

"The allotment law for taking care of dependents will change the status of many men," he said, "and there is no doubt that the families of many of those who now are in 3-A, will be able to take care of themselves without the income of the man in the family."
